

DIY HEADBOARD PLANS

The numbers below are the recommended order that you cut your boards.
All of our boards are cut at either 45 or 90 degrees.

If you are not making a headboard for a California King, your lengths and the spacing between each board may differ. You can still use the same general pattern and continue to cut at 45 and 90 degrees.

Note: the plans are backwards.

This is how the pattern will look when you are laying it out and assembling. When you flip it over, it will look like the pictures of our headboard.

Sometimes it's easier to understand cuts when they are laying flat. Hope this helps!

You can see how I grouped my pieces when I broke out them into "columns" while I stained.
